

Jeffrey Scudder <your@dventur.es>

 Adventure time
5 messages

Jay Van Dam <jofdam@gmail.com>
To: "scary@dventur.es" <scary@dventur.es>

Sun, Jan 22, 2012 at 7:27 PM

How should I begin?

Jay Van Dam
616-881-3310
www.jayvandam.com

Sent from my iPhone

your adventures <your@dventur.es>
To: Jay Van Dam <jofdam@gmail.com>

Mon, Jan 23, 2012 at 2:15 AM

You are sitting at home - alone,
playing Skyrim - and,
your character is fighting a dragon.

There is a knock on the door to your apartment... you aren't expecting anyone, and didn't here anyone enter the hallway through the front.

[Quoted text hidden]

your adventures <your@dventur.es>
To: Jay Van Dam <jofdam@gmail.com>

Mon, Jan 23, 2012 at 2:15 AM

hear*
[Quoted text hidden]

Jay Van Dam <jofdam@gmail.com>
To: your adventures <your@dventur.es>

Mon, Jan 23, 2012 at 2:12 PM

I hesitate, and continue to slay the dragon as the knocking continues hard on the door. Once defeated, I shut down the ps3 and skyrim together.

A small square photo slides underneath the door, I pick it up.

It's of myself sleeping earlier that morning date and time on the bottom, through my bedroom window. Still dark out, and with loads of flash.

I peak through the peephole, nothing. Knocking has stopped, and how I have a strange feeling that I better grab my camera and head outside.

Jay Van Dam
616-881-3310
www.jayvandam.com

[Quoted text hidden]

your adventures <your@dventur.es>

Mon, Jan 23, 2012 at 8:40 PM

To: Jay Van Dam <jofdam@gmail.com>

You grab your camera from your room and begin to leave your apartment.

You accidentally drop the the photo that was slid under the door, and notice that on its backside is a crude pencil drawing of a man with a camera.

[Quoted text hidden]