

Museum Of The School Of Social Work 2001

For this project I created a permanent "museum" based on the School of Social Work at the School of Social Work. There are five parts to the museum, a permanent collection of 100 framed photographs from the school's archive, two different types of rotating exhibitions, one is a series of display cases that students curate, the other is a display case that I send digital images to. Another aspect of the museum is a library of books of artist' work that cross over into social interactions. The last part is a web site that documents the project over time.
